Brief Overview of Promise Neighborhoods

- At its core, it involves engaging many partners in a specific community to build a “continuum of solutions” - or cradle-to-career pipeline of family and community supports – with great schools at the center.
- The approach was inspired by the work of the Harlem Children’s Zone.
- It describes both a grant program AND an approach to improving outcomes for children and youth.
The grantee may be a nonprofit, institution of higher education or tribal organization.

The grantee usually serves as the lead agency - or backbone organization – to help convene a set of cross-sector partners, including schools, districts, families, and nonprofits.

The grantee is responsible for both administering the grant AND convening and supporting the partners that comprise the cradle-to-career pipeline.
Success Factors

PN as an approach
• Involves aligning contributions of many partners in the service of each of the PN results and associated indicators from cradle-to-career
• Using data to measure and drive performance at both the program and population levels
• Requires leaders and partner organizations to think beyond programs and services (e.g., policy and systems change) and often adopt new mindsets and behaviors
• Can be used with or without a PN grant!

PN as a grant program
• Refers to implementation grants made by the U.S. Department of Education
• Requires lead agency to implement PN approach in addition to providing successful oversight and management of a complex grant program
• This includes regular reporting on progress toward achieving the PN results as well as capacity to effectively manage a large federal grant
• Grantees have access to a range of technical assistance from ED and its partners to support successful implementation.

Promise Neighborhoods must be willing and able to both implement the approach and manage their grants!
PN Lessons Learned

• Navigating both the grant program and the approach
• Measuring and managing performance at both the population and program-level
• Being willing to rethink organizational structures and roles
• Strengthening and deepening relationships with schools and districts
• Thinking early about a phased approach to the work and how it will be sustained beyond the five-year grant
Considerations for Prospective Applicants

• How will we ensure our lead agency has the capacity to manage the work?

• How might our partnership leverage the proposal development process itself to build buy-in and generate value for our community?

• How will we engage a wide range of partners, including young people and families?

• How might our partnership move forward to implement aspects of our proposal if we are unsuccessful in securing a grant?
